Scott A. Dev

In early 2025, with my Creative Web Development skills primed and ready, I began a venture as a freelance Digital Creative called ‘Scott A. Dev’. You can check out my website at scottaddev.com.

I have learnt an incredible amount from this period, i.e:

- How (not) to explain your service offering to a person who has never read a single line of code in their life
- Producing Static Website solutions which are maintainable for the client (GPAConsulting.co.uk)
- Producing educational material for learning Software (client: Shopware AG’s ‘Community Hub').
- Created a Social Media presence via LinkedIn and helped build awareness of the work I have been doing

After a lot of trials and tribulations pursuing a fully autonomous mode of work, I have come to a new appreciate of the benefits of working within a team setting, and I feel that the holistic range of skills that this period of work has given me will allow me to
